

Wrongful Dismissal Lawyer Prince George

Wrongful Dismissal Lawyer Prince George - Employers have been forced to restructure their operations because of the difficult economic times, that could leave many past employees without a job.

By law, terminating on the grounds of age, ancestry, color, family status, gender, disabilities, religious beliefs, marital status and place of origin are all prohibited by the Human's Rights, Citizenship and Multiculturalism Act. The code which establishes the guidelines for employer - employee relationships is the Employment Standards Code. Unfortunately, many of the decisions made in wrongful dismissal courts are being swayed by economic climate. Even if this can work in the advantage of the workers, it often does not.

When handling wrongful dismissal law, it is wise to find legal counsel as the laws are really complex. Questions concerning hiring, reclassification, or termination of employment must be brought to a lawyer immediately to save time and money in the future.